The following are the developments during the current week:

JOSEPH BARBOZA, aka JOE BARON, appeared in Suffolk County Superior Court, Boston, Mass., where "habitual criminal" indictments against him were filed, and he was given "not less than one year nor more than a year and a day" on other counts. This sentence was in connection with the "conspiracy" indictment involving the murder of EDWARD "TEDDY" DEEGAN in 1965.

Attorney JOHN E. FITZGERALD, who lost his leg when a bomb shattered his automobile last January, appeared in court standing on an artificial limb with the aid of a cane and represented BARON at the proceedings.

The Essex County Grand Jury opened an investigation into the alleged swindling of a North Shore bank by men with La Cosa Nostra connections. It was anticipated that as many as 120 witnesses would be called. Assistant Attorney General DONALD L. CONN is making the presentation and during this week well known Boston hoodlums FRANK BALLIRO, WILLIAM BALLIRO, and PHILIP WAGGONHEIM were called as witnesses.

The "Boston Globe," a daily Boston, Mass. newspaper, carried the following during this week:

A person convicted of a felony can now obtain a permit to purchase a gun in Massachusetts.

A person currently on probation for commission of a felony can also obtain a permit to purchase a gun in this Commonwealth.

These are two of several "serious loopholes" which Massachusetts Police Chiefs have found in the new gun laws which went into effect in Massachusetts last Monday (10/28/68).

Police Chiefs throughout the State will meet Thursday to discuss the problems concerning the new laws. It is expected the Chiefs will take action on Thursday to seek assistance from the Attorney General in obtaining an interpretation of the new laws and changes in the regulations.

Police Chief JOHN KILLEEN of Pittsfield, Mass., is the person who discovered the flaws in the law. He notified HECTOR PELLETIER, Executive Secretary of the Police Chiefs' Association in Massachusetts.
